YOUR WAY TO THE WORLD

OLYMPIA, WASHINGTON

WHAT MAKES EVERGREEN DIFFERENT?

When you learn how Evergreen works, you learn how the world works.

The Evergreen State College is a small—and mighty—four-year, liberal arts and sciences college located in Olympia, Washington. Evergreen's innovative approach to education prepares you for the way the world happens now. And the next now. And the now after that.

The essence of Evergreen isn't tradition, but invention. Art, science, English, history, and other subjects don't exist in a vacuum. That's why our integrated approach to learning encourages independence from the typical academic structure.

But you won't do it alone. Everyone here learns from each other, working in teams from the science lab to the dorm room to the forests and beaches that surround us.

Our focus is always on you. Your passions. Your sense of community. Your time and space to dig deep and dream big.

ONE PROGRAM = COUNTLESS POSSIBILITIES

At Evergreen, a single program takes the place of multiple classes. A program spans one, two, or even three quarters—allowing you the time needed to produce the kind of work that would make any portfolio shine.

Most programs at Evergreen are team-taught, so you'll learn from faculty with expertise in multiple academic fields. Since you'll take just one program at a time, you'll develop a close working relationship with your faculty team. And they'll know your schedule, so you won't have to worry about a field trip conflicting with a test.

GREENERS AT WORK

It's no coincidence that Evergreen alumni flourish in the working world.

Nearly 9 in 10 Evergreen alumni are employed or pursuing professional studies within a year of graduation. Here are just a few of the many Greeners using their skills to change the world.

Carrie Brownstein '98

is a founding member of the band Sleater-Kinney, co-creator and star of "Portlandia," and author of Hunger Makes Me a Modern Girl: A Memoir.

Korbett Mosesly '11, MPA '15

is improving communities as Director of Family Stability Initiatives at United Way of Pierce County.

Paul Stamets '79

is a ground-breaking mycologist, author, medical researcher, and inspiration for a "Star Trek: Discovery" science officer.

Emily Washines '10

is the founder and CEO of Native Friends, a filmmaker, historian, and cultural and environmental leader.

"We have Greeners working on the most significant and challenging environmental issues of our time. Our hiring managers tell us that Evergreen degrees impress them because they believe that the educational model inspires intentional, self-motivated learning—an essential quality because of the dynamic nature of our work."
