

college selection guide

Your guide to finding the right school for you

why college?

By now, you've probably heard the same question over and over:

Where are you going to college?

Before you settle on the "where," there are a few questions to answer.

Why do you want to go to college?

Is there a particular job you want to have?

Are there skills you want to learn?

Is there an area of the country or the world you want to experience?

Think about what your life looks like now.

What do you want to keep, and how would you like for it to change?

what do you enjoy?

Mind map it.

Mind mapping is an exercise to help you take one big idea and break it up into smaller categories. Breaking up ideas in this way helps you to see any larger themes that may appear as you work through the process. Use the grid shown here to map out your interests and potential careers related to those interests.

The example below gives an idea of what to include in your mind map.

There are several great mind mapping software programs and websites online. The basic map above will give you a start, but we highly recommend going online and creating your own.

On your mind map, you identified potential careers; jot down below the ones that interest you most.

[illegible]

where do you want to be?

Do you want to stay in your town, your state, or your region (Southeast, Midwest, West Coast, etc.)?

Will you be energized by a big city?

Or are you looking for a quieter campus life?

Select your location choices below.

I would like to go to school in the:

Northeast Southeast Southwest West Midwest Doesn't Matter

I would like to go to school in a college town that is:

Rural Small Town City Big City Doesn't Matter

I would like to go to school in a location surrounded by:

Beach Flat Land Mountains Doesn't Matter

I prefer weather that is:

Dry Wet Warm Cold Doesn't Matter

I want to be this far from home:

30-Minute Drive 2- to 5-Hour Drive 1-Day Drive I Want to Fly to Get Home Doesn't Matter

what else?

When it comes to college, there's something for everyone! Whether you're looking for a vocational program to specialize in a trade or a bachelor's degree to lead you to a doctorate, there are a lot of choices to consider.

Here are a few questions to think about as you start your search.

Select your college type.

I would prefer a college that is:

Public   Private   Doesn't Matter

I want a college with a student population that is this big:

Large (15,000 +)   Medium (5,000 - 15,000)   Small (less than 5,000)   Doesn't Matter

Ultimately, I want to earn a/an:

Associate's Degree   Certificate   Bachelor's Degree   Master's Degree   Doctorate

I'm interested in a college with a focus on:

Performing Arts   Liberal Arts   Religious Studies   Military Service
Specialized School   Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM)

other interests

There's more to college than going to classes. To be well-rounded, you need to pursue interests and hobbies that are important to you. Start exploring what else makes you tick and will ultimately help you cope with the pressures of college – and live a fulfilling life.

Your activities

I am interested in participating in these activities:

Campus Radio / Newspaper

Community Service Organizations

Greek Life

International Opportunities

Intramural Sports

Music / Band

Outdoor Recreation

Political Clubs

Religious Programs

ROTC

Student Government Association

Theater

Visual Arts

make a list

As a high school junior, it's good to have a list of 7-10 potential college options.

Think about the colleges you are considering and what appeals to you at each place.

Can you think of other schools that have similar qualities?

1

Write down the colleges you're currently thinking about below.

Add your top 5 interests below.
The schools that match your listed criteria are a good place to start your college search. After adding your interests below, research each college you listed to determine if they offer programs related to those topics.

	Interest #1		Interest #2		Interest #3		Interest #4		Interest #5		Total number of "yes" responses
	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No
	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No
	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No

consider the stats

Your ideal college list should include colleges that you hope to get into (your dream school!) as well as schools that you feel more confident about your qualifying ability. These are also known as stretch and safety schools.

1

Write down the colleges you're currently thinking about below.

3

Know the stats.

Enter the relevant requirements for each of the colleges you listed on the previous page.

Average GPA	Average ACT/SAT Scores	Admit Rate	Early Deadline Date	Regular Deadline Date

check the costs

Check the financial aid websites of your colleges to learn more about costs.

When you calculate the total, don't let it scare you away!

College is an investment you're making in yourself. And at many schools, you'll pay less than the "sticker price" listed online.

Look for Net Price Calculators, which can be found on each school's admission and/or financial aid websites.

more about cost

There are a lot of creative ways to pay your way through college. Some examples include:

Work Study These are on-campus jobs where your pay applies directly to your bill.

Scholarships These are often offered by the prospective college, but be sure to talk to your high school counselor and search online to find outside scholarships offered by local businesses and community organizations.

Grants Similar to scholarships, grants provide money you don't have to pay back.

Loans Offered to both students and parents, these help you delay making payments until after you graduate.

next steps

You've made your list and narrowed it down. What's next?

Connect Visit the school websites and fill out an interest form. Getting on the mailing list will keep you in the loop about important details such as deadlines and upcoming events.

Develop your questions Before you hit the road to visit campus, think about the questions YOU want to ask!

Visit Schedule a campus visit. You won't really know if a college fits you until you step on campus. Take a look around: Can you see yourself going to classes and living there?
